

Clement Moore Henry is Professor of Government at the University of Texas at Austin. His publications include The Politics of Islamic Finance (2004), coedited with Rodney Wilson, and The Mediterranean Debt Crescent: A Comparative Study of Money and Power in Algeria, Egypt, Morocco, Tunisia, and Turkey (1996); Images of Development: Egyptian Engineers in Search of Industry (2nd ed. 1994); and Politics in North Africa: Algeria, Morocco, Tunisia (1970).

Robert Springborg is Professor of National Security Affairs at the Naval Postgraduate School. Until August 2008 he held the MBI Al Jaber Chair in Middle East Studies at the School of Oriental and African Studies in London, where he also served as Director of the London Middle East Institute. Professor Springborg's publications include Legislative Politics in the Arab World (1999), Mubarak's Egypt: Fragmentation of the Political Order (1989), and Family Power and Politics in Egypt (1982).

THE CONTEMPORARY MIDDLE EAST

In a new edition of their book, Clement Moore Henry and Robert Springborg reflect on what has happened to the region's economy since 2001. How have the various countries in the Middle East responded to the challenges of globalization and to the rise of political Islam, and what changes have occurred? Utilizing the country categories they applied in the previous edition and further elaborating the significance of the structural power of capital and Islamic finance, they demonstrate how over the past decade the monarchies and the conditional democracies continue to fare better than the military dictatorships or "bullies" and the "bunker states."

Praise for the first edition

"This is a very interesting, provocative and thought-provoking book by two of the most experienced political scientists-turned-political economists, at work on the Middle East." —E. Roger Owen, A.J. Meyer Professor of Middle Eastern History, Harvard University

"Categories chosen are not just eye-catching but explanatory.... This richly detailed, demanding study deserves a careful reading."

—Foreign Affairs

"This volume makes several significant contributions to the growing literature on the political economy of the Middle East."

—Middle East Journal

"...the volume marks a milestone in studying the impact of globalization on the MENA region. It will be of particular use to students of the Middle East, but also to anyone seeking a better understanding of the challenges and opportunities facing regional governments in the years and decades to come."

—International Journal

"... an excellent presentation of the opportunities much of the Middle East has missed and the costs of this failure."

—Development Policy Review

Henry Springborg Globalization and the Politics of Development in the Middle East

SECOND EDITION

Globalization and the Politics of Development

IN THE Middle East
SECOND EDITION

Clement Moore Henry
Robert Springborg

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS
www.cambridge.org

ISBN 978-0-521-73744-9

9 780521 737449 >

CAMBRIDGE

CAMBRIDGE